Alive on the Grid

Professor Josephine Anstey of the Department of Media Studies collaborated on an internationally networked, immersive VR, interactive art exhibit that was "online" from September 1st-6th, 2001. Alive on the Grid was hosted by the Ars Electronica Center (Austria) and organized by the Electronic Visualization Laboratory, University of Illinois at Chicago. Audiences at CAVES and ImmersaDesks in Austria, Sweden, Hungary, the Netherlands, Chicago, Indiana and Buffalo were able to interact with one another while simultaneously experiencing colorful, rich environments created at the various sites.
